

Senior Exhibition 2017

Art & Design Program

Faculty Sponsors: Prof. John Lawrence, Prof. Marcia Brown, Prof. Margaret Reneke, and Prof. Al Waller

Description: This exhibition included works of art by five graduating art majors working in painting, graphic design, photography and, for the first time, animation and time lapse videos. Displaying their work in a museum setting represents the culmination of their education in the visual arts.

Garrison Brown displays photographs largely from his trip to Italy in 2016. These classic vanitas images focus on the beauty of “old buildings, rusted metal, and shattered glass”.

Jill Cook selects elements from nature to create repeating patterns for fabrics, wallpaper, and a number of other useful objects, such as wine koozies and greeting cards. She favors hands-on craft rather than computer graphics.

Kristi Sammons combines scanned objects and photography. After running images through a scanner, she manipulates both color and composition to create more complex configurations.

Meghan Lacey paints portraits that not only highlight a specific personality but also reveal the inherent spiritual connections between a person and the natural world. Her paintings have been greatly influenced by the British Pre-Raphaelite painters, whose works she saw during a semester in Oxford, England.

A time-lapse video shows Tylor Hepner in the process of creating his art. A second video is a demo reel of his animation work, which was presented at the Digital Creative Media and Film Showcase event at the West Side Recital Hall on campus. He is also exhibiting portraits of his family and friends, together with portraits of the superhero characters in Marvel's Avengers series.
